I am the Special Education Coordinator of a mid-size Charter School. I can never find Jen's Reading Strategies Book because one of our special educators is always borrowing it and utilizing strategies from it in their mini-lessons and/or conferencing with students. I just received The Writing Strategies Book from . We deal with students who have motivation challenges, low language quantity difficulties, and other challenges. Jen's book has 300 strategies and an excellent introduction section which gives you a very structured and common sense approach to building writers. The hierarchy of Writing skills not only allows you to place your writers on a continuum but for you to think strategically about which skill is most important to work with them first. This book is so comprehensive, so well-laid out, gives you so many plug n' play strategies as well as the way to explain them to students. In essence, Jen has given you a guide to quickly navigate your writers through the Writer's Workshop to make them skilled, independent writers.
