Customer Reviews

In this bedtime story, Mom is explaining the bedtime routine she shares with her daughter, Kayleigh.

Mom traces her steps as she tucks baby in for the night: warm bath, clean pajamas, hugs for toys and parents, before turning out the light. Then she shifts to a song and a prayer to God to keep baby safe. The latter part of the book revolves around what Mom will do if baby wakes and ends with a final prayer to God to keep baby safe. Readers should note that the book has a strong Christian focus. The illustrations are soft and rather charming, contributing to the mood that I believe the author intended. I feel that the text reads more like a letter or stream of consciousness rather than a story. Parents who read the book as a bedtime story might want to tailor it to suit their own family situation.

I've been review blogging for about 5 years now...and whenever it comes to a children's book that I am reviewing...I ALWAYS make it a joint review...myself and whichever of my two youngest children also read the book. To me, sure it's important that I like the book, but IT'S SO MUCH MORE IMPORTANT THAT MY CHILD LIKES THE BOOK AND THAT HE TAKES SOMETHING AWAY FROM IT, EVEN IF IT'S JUST A GOOD FEELING IN HIS HEART....and this is the case with RyAnn Hall's NIGHT, NIGHT, MY CHILD...Here is Nathan and I's review:~~~~This book is a really cute and simple book for really young children and beginning readers. My son, Nate and I read it before he went to bed Wednesday night, and I'm proud to say...IT WAS A HIT!! Meaning, we will be reading it again. Nate really liked the part that it included that you give your puppy kisses before you go to bed...because (s)he NEVER goes to bed without kissing his Nucky. Mommy liked the part where (s)he saves some of his hugs and kisses for Mommy. Because we all know that Mommy's CAN NEVER get enough hugs and kisses from our little ones. Nate really thought it was great that the book talked about Mommy rubbing his/her back until he fell asleep, because this is most definitely one of our nightly rituals. Even though this Mommy does occasionally give my little Nate (ok, not so little anymore, now that he's NINE...but he will forever be my baby) kisses on the cheek...Mommy's ALL TIME FAVORITE place to kiss a child is right between their eyes, that little spot that the skin bunches upon....and the smaller the child is, the more bunched up skin there is for Mommy to kiss :)) All in all, Nate and I thought this was a really cute night time book to read before bed, and since the rituals they did in the book before bed are so similar to the ones we do here at home, WE LIKED IT EVEN MORE!!~~~~I absolutely recommend this wonderful bedtime story to ALL PARENTS of young ones and also to BEGINNING READERS. Most definitely A FIVE STAR REVIEW!!~Serenity & Nathan Beautiful book! I think Kayleigh is a very Lucky girl to have such a special mommy. She loves her daughter and wants to make sure she is safe and has good dreams. This book touches the heart and is great for parents and grandparents to share with the children they love. A RyAnn Hall book is always a keeper!

Rating all my books 5 star until I have read them, I know the author's and I know how well they write. Updates when I read them. They get 5 stars until I read them and see different.

This book has beautiful illustrations and is written from a mother to her daughter. The sentiment of wanting God to keep her child is a sweet one. One of my favourite things about this book is that you could easily replace the main character's name with your own child's name (especially if your child isn't reading yet.) You can use the prayer or this book will inspire you to make your own. A very sweet book about a mother's love for her child.

This is a sweet story of a mother and daughter's bedtime routine. It shows how having a routine helps children fall asleep easier. This is a cute book to share with your children as you teach them about their bedtimes. I liked the story, but thought it could be more lyrical by smoothing the cadence.

This is a cute and fun time for bed. Stories like this should be told every night. I love the little story the mom told the girl and tip-toed out the door.

This was a very super cute bedtime story and the illustrations were nice. Any kid would enjoy having this read to them.
