An instant favorite with my 1-year-old. She loves seeing the animals and imitating their sounds - especially the tiger's ROAR! As with other Karen Katz books, the flaps are not the sturdiest (nor the weakest). My baby could probably destroy them pretty quickly without supervision. However, the book is light enough for her to carry around as a result. Can't have it both ways!

Good book for under 6 dollars. My son at 8 months thought it was great and wanted to read it a second time. We got it because he loved the Zoom Zoom Baby book so much. He liked the large high contrast letters, flaps, and mommy saying noises. Mommy did not let him touch the flaps though because they could cause paper cuts esp with his current dexterity. This is definitely going to be one of his top 5 favorite books for a while. The only cons are the wording rhythm is changed from the Zoom Zoom baby book, so I simply adjust it to match AND the sounds do not really makes sense so I do my own.

When I teach classes for my business, I always reach for these books first! They are great for little hands as well as short attention spans! I teach American Sign Language through my self owned business and have found that being able to sign a word and then lift flaps as well keeps children very engaged. I start using these books at 3 months all the way through 3 years because of the short stories and beautiful colors! This particular book is a very fun one to teach animals as well as work on those animal sounds that will be the pride and joy of your baby starting from 10 months through 3 years. Definitely recommend for preschoolers, homeschoolers, and teachers. Here are some other great options!

This is one of the best ones of the series. My 7-month old loves it. It associates the animals with their corresponding habitats and the sound they make. And these are linked together by a story - baby looking for the tiger. If only it had more pages!

I purchased this for my two year old grandson and with it being a board book, it should last a while. It has the flip out pages and my daughter will be making the sounds. LOL

LOVE THESE BOOKS!!! They are made very well and our little one loves the interaction of the lift the flap as you turn each page. He picks these books over the rest almost every single time.

My 16 month old loves flap books and this is another winner! Her favorite is when she opens to find the hippo in the water! Since she normally rips all of her books, flap or not, we generally save the newer flap books to read before nap and bedtime and don't keep it in her book box to help them last longer :)

Great book! My son (16 months at the time) loves this book. I taught him that the sound of a dinosaur was "roar". So every time I say roar in the book, he does.
