Hattie And The Fox

Synopsis

"I can see a nose and two eyes in the bushes!" cries Hattie. But nobody is listening. "I can see a nose, two eyes, two ears, two legs, and a body in the bushes!" cries Hattie. But no one is paying a bit of attention. Not goose. Not pig. Not horse. Not cow. She tries again and again to warn her friends of danger, but nobody listens to Hattie. That is, until they all realize that what Hattie is saying is true!

A hen warns her apathetic colleagues of a fox; according to PW, "Fox builds the suspense in this cumulative tale with precise pacing. Mullins uses tissue-paper collage to create an unusual effect, both fuzzy and comic." Ages 4-7. Copyright 1992 Reed Business Information, Inc.

Just ok nothing exciting or special has great reviews so I thought it would be better

My two boys (ages 6 and 4) love this story - it is cutely written and illustrated. They love to hear this story for bedtime. I mainly picked it because we have chickens and there was a chicken on the cover. Haha. Will look for more of her titles to read to them.

My grandchildren have loved this book for years. Now the older grandchildren are reading to the younger ones. I love hearing them change their voices for each of the animal characters in the book! Hearing them say, "Read it again", makes me smile every time.

I absolutely love this book. I lost my first copy so replaced it. It is a story that can be read over and over again. It can even be acted out with puppets in the classroom because it is similar to The Little Red Hen, in that the kids can remember their lines very easily. The artwork is wonderful...a paper collage with ink details. Check the faces out at the end. Toooooo cute! I consider it a classic.

we just loved the story. its was great reading it to my kids and doing the voices they really loved it. the colors are great. I would put this book with the Hungry Caterpillar and Brown Bear.

Got the book for my great nephew. My kids enjoyed this story when they were small.

A book requested ove and over by preschoolers

I loved this book as a read !
