Peter Mayle spent fifteen years in the advertising business before escaping in 1975 to write books, including his bestselling "A Year in Provence" and "Toujours Provence". His work has been translated into seventeen languages and he has contributed to a variety of newspapers and magazines. He lives with his wife in Provence. Robbins is Professor of Art Therapy at the Pratt Institute and a Founding Director of the Institute of Expressive Analysis. He is on the board of directors of the National Psychological Association for Psychoanalysis and has been on the faculty for over thirty years. He is also a New York State licensed psychologist and a graduate certified psychoanalyst.

I bought this book in hardback about 20 years ago when my daughter started asking the question 'how are babies made'. This book tells the correct story, using correct terms, but in a more understanding way for young minds to comprehend. I am now purchasing another copy to give to my daughter for her children.

Great book! I sat with my daughter while she read the book and flipped thru the pages. As soon as she turned to a nude picture she laughed and kept reading until she got to the second nude picture and said "I want to read this later." She read it the next day and the next until she was comfortable with finishing. I asked her questions and she asked me questions. This book will is wonderful in so many ways.

Great book for older (pre-puberty) kids. Got this for my son, who is 11 and he loved it.

I used this books years ago with my boys and now will use again with my girl! Very good book to sit with the kids and explain stuff out to them!

Great straight forward information

Love it!!

My parents read this book to me and I read it to my kids. It makes explaining the "birds and bees" much easier

This is a great explanation book with non-graphic illustrations that are cartoon like for young children. I bought for my own children many years ago. When I couldn't find my copy from years ago, I bought it again for my grandchild.
