Norma Jean Lutz began her professional writing career in 1977, when she enrolled in a writing correspondence course. Since then, she has had over 200 short stories and articles published in both secular and Christian publications. She is also author of five published teen novels. JoAnn lives on the Minnesota prairie which is a setting for many of her stories. Once a full-time CPA, JoAnn now spends most of her time researching and writing. JoAnn has published historical nonfiction books for children and several novels with Barbour Publishing in the Heartsong Presents line as well as the American Adventure and Sisters in Time series for children. Several of her novellas are included in CBA bestselling anthologies by Barbour Publishing. JoAnn's love of history developed when she worked at an historical restoration in North Carolina for five years. She enjoys researching and weaving her fictional characters' lives into historical backgrounds and events. JoAnn believes that readers can receive a message of salvation and encouragement from well-crafted fiction. She captures and addresses the deeper meaning between life and faith.

My granddaughter loved it, as she has all of the sisters in time books. So thankful I was able to find it in print.

My daughter loves these books. This book was in excellent condition!

read the whole series, you'll like it

Such a great series! My daughter just loves these. The religious aspect of these is an important part of American history. Wish there were more...

The "Sisters in Time" are children's books with an agenda; to promote the authors' religious point of view. Which is fine, as long as the reader is not expecting an accurate version of historical events. More importantly, the writing is ABSOLUTELY TERRIBLE. You would have to go a long way to find books more poorly written. Even the American Girl series (not noted for its literary quality) is better than this collection. One star is generous. If I could give a quarter of a star, I would.
