Kindergarten-Grade 3
In this rollicking Fourth of July story, Grandma ends up driving the garbage truck because all three of her sons are down with the flu. The intrepid woman suits up and decides to pick up the trash according to schedule so that things are spic and span for the holiday celebration. Along with her young grandson Billy, she inadvertently picks up garlands of roses, a clothesline strung with apparel, and an American flag as she navigates the large truck through the narrow streets. When she steers the vehicle onto the parade route, she toots the horn and waves to the crowd, earning a ribbon for the Most Creative Float. The bright and festive watercolors enhance this lighthearted tale that's perfect for reading aloud.

The book deals with a business owned by grandma, and the sons drive the garbage trucks.

However, both sons called in sick on the same day so grandma does what she has to do, runs the route herself. In the process, she picks up enough extra items on her garbage truck from her route, rose bushes, clothes line, etc. that she wins the parade she accidentally enters. A fun book for 2-3 yr. old

Bought this book for my 3 year old grandson who loves garbage trucks. As a matter of fact, he was a garbage truck or Halloween. So I thought this book was appropriate for him.....and it was!!!

Such a cute and funny book! I bought this for my niece and nephew to read with their Grandma, and they have asked Gram to read it so many times now! The whole family got a kick out of this one, because Grandma saves the day!

A fun story for grandma to read to her grandsons who love garbage trucks.

Fun book to read with my grandson who enjoys imagining us on a garbage run together!

I will mail it off to my Grandson in Washington, looks to be a good book.

Purchased for my Grandson's birthday to accompany his garbage truck pj's. His birthday is in December so he has not seen the book yet. I have looked through it and am sure he will love having it read to him

We love this book!
